Venice man shot to death

Venice police say they have several strong leads in the shooting death of a 49-year-old man at his home last week.

But no suspect had been either arrested or charged in relation to the case by Friday afternoon, said Sgt. Derek Wise of the Venice Police Department.

Police are treating the death of Rudolph Glenn, of the 200 block of Baucum Avenue, as a homicide.

Glenn was pronounced dead at St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 8:25 a.m. Thursday of a single gunshot wound to the abdomen, according to Madison County Coroner Investigator Ed Morton.

Wise said that Glenn was found shot in the abdomen on the front porch of his home at 11:39 p.m. Wednesday. Glenn was taken to SEMC by a Campbell's ambulance.

Police were interviewing witnesses to the shooting Friday afternoon. Det. Sgt. Theo Adams said police have "very strong leads" in the case.

"Witnesses have made sworn statements that (the suspect) shot Glenn at his home. We are continuing the investigation," Adams said.

Wise declined to identify a suspect or suspects or a motive in the shooting.

But a police source said that a Venice man, involved in a separate dispute involving a gun earlier in the week, is believed to have shot Glenn.

The source declined to say if the shooting and the earlier incident were related.

Glenn's death is the second shooting-related death in Venice this year, Wise said. Both shootings took place on Baucum Avenue.

On May 12, 13-year-old Tyameeka Weathers was shot while walking with her mother in the 300 block of Baucum Avenue. Tyameeka was pronounced dead the next day.

The alleged shooter, Lemil L. Johnson, 27, of the 1300 block of Oriole Street in Venice, was charged with unlawful possession of a weapon by a felon and involuntary manslaughter.

Police said that Tyameeka was accidentally shot when Johnson and another man struggled and a gun accidentally discharged.

Johnson was on parole from a 1985 burglary conviction at the time of Tyameeka's shooting.

Roger Moore, a "soldier" with the Salvation Army, is hoping to fill this empty fish bowl with donations during the "Christmas in July" fund-raiser.

'Christmas in July' Salvation Army begins fund drive

Last year, the "Great Flood of '93" knocked on the door of thousands of homes, touching the lives of many unfortunate people.

For some, the flood was only a minor inconvenience and is now almost forgotten. But thousands of others had their lives turned upside-down and the memory will last forever.

Unfortunately, floods, earthquakes and the more common disasters of poverty, hungry children, homeless people and forgotten elderly do exist.

The Salvation Army was prepared to help when the flood waters ravaged homes on Chouteau Island last summer. Now, the Salvation Army is preparing for the disasters that will strike tomorrow or in the near future.

The Salvation Army has declared July a special month of preparation and has established a "Christmas in July" campaign.

Throughout this month, volunteers are manning the fronts of stores, street corners and other locations throughout Madison County collecting for the known needs of today and the unforeseen needs of tomorrow.

Budget deficit may cut reserves

Budget hearing on Tuesday

By Bob Slate
 Staff writer

Mayor Ron Selph has proposed a budget of more than $13.4 million for the city of Granite City in fiscal year 1994-95.

There will be a public hearing on the budget and appropriation ordinance at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the City Council chambers in City Hall.

The general fund budget, which does not include provisions for pay increases for city employees who have not yet reached contact agreements, projects expenditure of $281,232 more than the expected revenue.

That deficit spending level could climb to as much as $650,000 for the year with a provision for raises for all city employees, said City Comptroller K.F. MacTaggart. But the deficit level could be lowered with additional revenues anticipated from a cable television franchise agreement currently being negotiated.

The projected deficit would eat into a $1.7 million reserve the city has accumulated.

The city had about $2 million in its general fund May 1, 1993 — the start of the last fiscal year — and adopted a 1993-94 general fund budget projecting a deficit of more than $1 million.

But records show that frugal spending by Selph's administration, combined with savings created by job attrition and revenues that exceeded projections, resulted in a deficit of about $300,000 last year — leaving the $1.7 million reserve now available.

Selph and MacTaggart presented the 1994-95 budget to the City Council's Finance Committee during two meetings last week.

Walter Milton, chairman of the Finance Committee, commended Selph and MacTaggart for the budget preparation.

"We are not, in my opinion, in the business of building up a huge bank account. We need to have enough money to provide services and pay our monthly bills so that we don't have to withhold any checks," Milton said.

In the past few years, the Finance Committee — with MacTaggart's assistance — has prepared the annual general fund budget during six to 10 grueling sessions that often lasted well past midnight.

"The mayor's preparation of this budget has definitely taken a burden off the Finance Committee," Milton said after the final budget session last week.

Park district loses city funding in 8-7 council vote

By Bob Slate
 Staff writer

The Granite City Park District will not receive any of the city's leftover community development funds.

With no discussion or debate, the Granite City Council voted 8-7 Tuesday not to fund a resolution that would have transferred $25,000 of the city's unused 1993-94 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds to the Park District.

The unused funds were initially earmarked to pay for an engineering study of 16th Street.

The failed resolution came one week after the council voted 8-5 not to grant the park district $25,000 from its 1994-95 CDBG funds.

CDBG funds are distributed to cities and counties through the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. They are to be used for infrastructure improvements and job creation in areas that meet HUD low- to moderate-income guidelines.

The Park District planned to use the CDBG funds to make improvements to the Lincoln Place Community Center, Tri-City Park, Randall Robertson Park in East Granite and Barry Loman Park in West Granite.

Voting against the resolution were Aldermen Casmer Skubish, Dan Partney, Juanita Cravens, Sandy Criles, Craig Tarpo, Bob Page, Nick Petrillo and Mac Warfield.

Aldermen Jim Miller, Walter Milton, Kim Afoller, Eddie Asadorian, Foster Frederick, Bob Shipley and Lurton Pulley voted in favor of the measure.

School board names Dickerson to vacancy

By Bob Slate
 Staff writer

Beating a deadline last week, the Granite City School Board came together in the final hours and filled the vacant board position of the late Monroe Worlton.

The board voted 4-1 at a special meeting Wednesday to appoint Rick W. Dickerson to the post.

Dickerson will officially be seated at the July 19 meeting.

The board had until Thursday to appoint someone to fill the vacancy created by the May 24 death of Board President Worlton.

If the board had failed to name a replacement, Madison County Regional School Superintendent Harry Briggs would have been given the task. Four votes were needed to name a replacement.

The board deliberated over the issue at its June 16 meeting, where the names of 11 candidates were released, but no decision was reached.

A special meeting was called for June 23 for the sole purpose of seeking a replacement. At that time, two more names were added to the list of those being considered.

But no business could be conducted or discussion held because a quorum of four members was not present.

With no discussion on the matter, the board voted to name Dickerson to the vacancy less than a minute into Wednesday night's meeting.

Year after murder, family awaits trial of 2

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Family and friends of the late Brenda Dusek marked an unhappy occasion last week — the one-year anniversary of Dusek's alleged murder by a group of juveniles as she walked to her car in St. Louis on June 28, 1993.

And the months ahead promise to be difficult as well when family members have to relive the painful time during the trial of two 16-year-olds accused of the murder, said Dusek's stepmother, Marge Norwood of the 2000 block of Hill Creek Road in Collinsville.

Dusek, 32, formerly of Granite City, was gunned down by half a dozen teen-agers in broad daylight as she walked from her job as an account administrator at Mercantile Bank to her car, parked a few blocks away near the intersection of Ninth and Carr streets in St. Louis.

The Collinsville woman left behind her parents, three grown children and three young grandchildren.

"It's been really a bad, bad year for us," Norwood said this week, with tears. "I don't want her to be forgotten, so I'm really trying real hard to hold up for her trial. That's going to be a hard time."

Norwood said she had been told the trial could start as early as next week, but that it has now been postponed.

Investigator John Moss said he would expect it to be several months before the case actually goes to trial.

"It's on the docket for the week of July 11, but it's not preassigned, and (prosecutor) Nels Moss has a death penalty case that will go to trial next week," John Moss said. (The Mosses are brothers.)

Norwood said that four boys involved but not charged had agreed to testify against the other two — one of whom allegedly pushed Dusek and grabbed her purse, and the other of whom was the alleged triggerman.

"I'm really worried and upset about it, because I'm afraid those kids are going to say they don't remember, or they didn't see anything," Norwood said. Norwood said she planned to attend the trial along with her husband, Grover. Dusek's three children and several of her in-laws, she hopes family members would help the case by their support.

While Norwood said she doesn't expect things to be easy "from here on out," she said a guilty verdict and a stiff sentence for the two defendants would help her to rest somewhat easier.

"I think it would for me; I don't know about the rest of the family," she said.

"They took a life, and I believe (the court system) should take a life in return. That was the only child we had. She was a very religious person, and a very good person."

Laws aim at domestic violence

A new state law that took effect July 1 makes repeat violations of orders of protection a felony while another allows police to seize weapons in cases of domestic violence.

Law enforcement officials say the new laws will provide additional help to officers in dealing with domestic disturbances.

The laws won praise from Margarette Trushel, executive director of the Oasis Women's Center.

Both provisions were passed by lawmakers last summer before the increased focus on domestic violence spurred by publicity over the O.J. Simpson case.

Violating an order of protection becomes a Class A felony, with a prison term of up to three years for a second or subsequent violation or for domestic battery.

Local authorities say they frequently respond to calls from defendants who are not taking the orders of protection seriously and think they can ignore it and go and see their wife or girlfriend whenever they want.

Repeated violations are common. More women are requesting orders of protection but some are still afraid that if they seek one, it may cause an estranged husband or boyfriend to become even more abusive.

Authorities also support the new law that will allow police to seize weapons when answering a domestic disturbance call. The law requires "probable cause to believe that particular weapons were used to commit an incident of abuse."

Trushel said both laws are "another step in protecting the victims," noting legislation against domestic violence has been receiving more attention in recent years.

She said she believed domestic violence victims will particularly welcome the law allowing police to confiscate weapons.

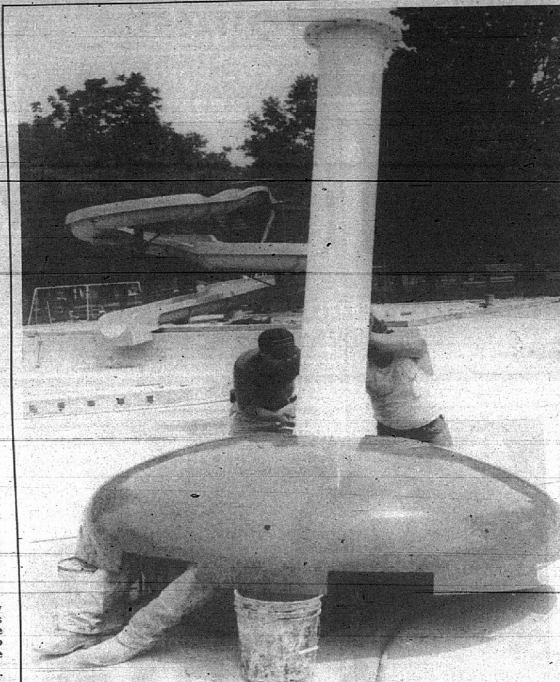

"If someone threatens you with a gun and that is removed, at least they have to go out and get another weapon if they're going to threaten you again."

Besides the new laws to discourage domestic violence, several other anti-crime measures passed by lawmakers last summer kicked in July 1. Among them:

• Intentionally throwing an object from an overpass and hitting a moving car would be a felony punishable by up to seven years in prison.

• In some cases, defendants may make court appearances via closed-circuit television from jail.

Foot chase yields arrest for pot

After a foot chase July 1, the Venice police charged Robert L. Burt, 17, Venice with unlawful possession of cannabis, Venice police reported.

According to Venice police reports, upon witnessing a possible drug transaction, police apprehended Burt at the circle drive of 111 Lee Wright Homes after he attempted to elude the police on foot.

Police alleged finding a bag of cannabis on Burt.

Festival will close with celebration

Busch Stadium will be the scene of a celebration this evening as the U.S. Olympic Festival '94 comes to a close.

The ceremonies, which will include the passing of the official Festival flag, will begin at the stadium following the Festival's gold medal baseball game, or approximately 8 p.m.

Tickets are for the gold medal game and closing celebration are $8.

The closing gala entertainment will include sky divers, hot air balloons and the Anheuser-Busch Clydesdales.

Dobbe Turner, a former Miss America, will sing the national anthem. Jack Buck, St. Louis Cardinals broadcaster, will serve as emcee.

The official ceremony also will include a parade of more than 1,000 athletes and the passing of the Festival flag to Colorado Lt. Gov. Sam Castdy from St. Louis Mayor Freeman Bosley Jr.

Denver, Boulder and Colorado Springs will host the U.S. Olympic Festival in 1996.

The Festival cauldron, which was lit at opening ceremonies under the Arch, will be extinguished by Bosley at Busch Stadium. The Festival flag will be brought to Busch Stadium by the airborne Quantum Leap, a four-man sky-diving team from St. Louis.

Brief fireworks will punctuate the ceremony and entertainment will be provided by the Bob Kuban Brass Band.

The Festival volunteer office is inviting all Festival volunteers to attend the closing ceremonies free of charge as long as they show their credentials. Volunteers are encouraged to wear their Festival shirts to create a block of color in the stands.

The volunteer office also is seeking additional help Monday through Wednesday to dismantle the athlete village at Washington University and several other venues. Volunteer crews will work shifts between 6 a.m. and midnight.

Honesty lives

Shopper helps woman, 80, recover lost purse

By Hiley Schulte
Staff writer

Honesty is the best policy. That's what 88-year-old Alice Dumoulin of Granite City has always believed. Last week, she found out she is not alone.

On June 30, Alice took a routine trip to the Granite City Wal-Mart. After paying for her selected items, she put the two sacks of goods and her purse back into her cart, and headed for the parking lot.

When she reached her car, she opened it and put her purse in the back. Next, she was on her way.

When she got home she realized her purse keys were not available in her purse because her purse was not there.

She had left the purse in the cart at the store, along with 25 credit cards and $30.

Alice, a teacher at St. Elizabeth School for 17 years, rushed back to Wal-Mart and parked in the same place. The cart and the purse were gone.

She was sure that her purse had been stolen because "10 years ago at the bowling alley, one of my former students swiped my purse."

But she ran into Wal-Mart and heard an employee calling her telephone number. "That's my number," she said.

The employee then lifted her purse up from under the counter.

Debbie Dillard and her seven-year-old son, Brian, of Granite City also believe in honesty. They found the purse when they parked at Wal-Mart to do some shopping.

Upon seeing the purse in the cart, Debbie thought someone must have purchased a new purse while in Wal-Mart and left the old one in the cart. But, upon further investigation, Debbie and her son realized that the purse did indeed belong to someone. They took it to the store's service desk.

"I couldn't just leave it there. It wasn't safe."

"I thought, 'Someone is having a panic attack. If I leave it here, the wrong person could get hold of it,'" Debbie explained.

When she and her son had finished shopping, they went back to the service desk to see whether the owner of the purse had been found. That's when Alice came in to inquire about her purse.

Alice got her purse and was introduced to the Dillards.

Alice tried to reward Debbie for returning the purse, but Debbie wouldn't accept it.

So, Alice gave money to Brian, who used it to get a souvenir at a ball game that night.

Alice was glad to have her purse back, but not just because of the money.

"You hear so much brutality these days. This is an honest story. This girl deserves all the credit in the world," Alice said.

Law to force permits for farm equipment is postponed

The Illinois General Assembly postponed for six months a new state law set to begin last Friday that would hit many area farmers and equipment implement dealers right where it hurts—in their pocketbooks.

Rep. Ron Stephens of Troy, original sponsor of the law, on Thursday pushed an amendment through both chambers of the General Assembly that postpones a law set to start July 1 until after the election.

Anyone who hauls farm equipment more than 12 feet wide on state highways would have to buy permits, costing from $25 to $125, depending on the size of the machinery and the distance traveled, according to the law.

The legislation does not require permits for those who drive wide farm equipment.

Stephens said the intent of the bill was to make roads safer, not to stick farmers with added costs.

"We discussed the bill with the Farm Bureau last year and no one had any problems with it. We still don't think the bill is causing the damage. It's the way it's being implemented."

Stephens said he'll work to either repeal the law or lessen the blow to farmers by making it an annual permit.

But his Democratic challenger in the November race for the 110th House District, Bob Daiber of Marine, criticized the Republican lawmaker for sponsoring the legislation last session.

"It is not stopping the movement of equipment," said Daiber, who is a farmer. "It's just the state once again sticking its fingers where they don't belong—in the pockets of working taxpayers."

Farm Bureau, said the law puts heavy restrictions on what time of the day equipment can be moved.

Hauling such equipment would only be allowed a half hour before sunrise and a half hour after sunset on weekdays and until noon on Saturday.

Special restrictions also would be made on holidays.

So, if a dealer is hauling broken equipment, farmers may have to wait to get it fixed, which affects their production, Harms said. Some farmers who own several farms far apart also would be affected.

But both Harms and the Illinois Department of Transportation agree equipment dealers, whose business depends on hauling farm equipment, would be hit the hardest. The law passed 114-0 last session with several legislators who also are farmers supporting the measure.

Program gives youths Olympic chance

U.S. Olympic Festival volunteer and educator Ed Hightower calls it the chance of a lifetime for hundreds of area youths.

Madison County Urban League President Dr. Paula Livingston Thomas calls it a chance at a better life.

At a minimum, the Olympic Festival's Dreams for Youth program are helping spread festival fever to children who would not have a chance to attend the sporting events on their own.

The Dreams program has distributed 20,000 tickets to about 125 youth programs, including the Edwardsville YMCA and the River Bluffs Scout Council in Edwardsville.

More than 1,000 youngsters across the St. Louis metropolitan area will get to take part in sports clinics run by festival athletes.

"I think Dreams for Youth is an excellent idea," Thomas said. "One of our main thrusts is education. A program like this presents challenges and, hopefully, positive role models. It will expose the children to sports and competition, but it also will teach them self-esteem and self-confidence."

The Dreams for Youth program is the Festival's community outreach project designed to give "underserved" youths a chance to attend and participate in events, program director Mary Elizabeth Grimes said.

Gary Niebur, executive director of the Edwardsville YMCA, said he received 50 tickets for the gymnastics competition and 100 for basketball.

"The excitement this program has generated for the kids in our programs, such as gymnastics, has been incredible," he said. "The tickets for gymnastics were gone in less than an hour."

The Olympic Festival wrestling competition was at Edwardsville's Vandalia Center through Wednesday.

Cyclists raced the Great River Road from Alton in time trials Thursday, and the track and field events were to break in the new STUE stadium Friday through Sunday.

Dreams for Youth will remain after the Festival closes today. The program will be continued for other events promoted by the St. Louis Sports Commission, of which Grimes is director of operations and marketing.

"On July 10, when the Festival has come and gone, just like the Rec-Plex (in St. Peters, Mo.) and the track and field stadium (at STUE), Dreams of Youth will be a legacy," she said.

Marks 70 years as Catholic sister

Sister Theodore Uekman, who served St. Elizabeth Medical Center for 50 years, recently celebrated the 70th anniversary of her entrance into the Catholic order, the Congregation of the Sisters of Divine Providence.

A Mass, brunch and reception were held June 26 at the Mount Providence motherhouse in Missouri. Among those in attendance were relatives, present and former SEMC associates, as well as other friends from Granite City, Madison, Collinsville, Glen Carbon and Edwardsville.

Sister Uekman, sister Uekman was nurse supervisor for the emergency room and the surgery floor, as well as central supply clerk initially fulfilling all three roles at the same time.

Over the years, she held various positions at SEMC. Her favorite position was that of nurse supervisor, and the love was reciprocal: her nurse friends still send roses (her favorite flower) on her birthday, May 28.

Among her sisters in the community, she was the "nurses' nurse." At age 90, Sister Uekman continues to embody southern graciousness and hospitality — which is not complete without sharing sweet rolls and fine coffee from thin-tipped china cups.

Like all well-bred southern ladies, she has always hated bugs, and thus she enjoyed the jubilee reception being held indoors.

Sister Uekman appreciates the performing arts, especially singing and dancing. Her own likeness was evident at the reception, when she danced with the younger sisters in her community and with the Rev. J. Friedel, who celebrated the Mass.

She surprised her guests when she accepted the snare drum brushes from a sister musician and began playing naturally.

Sister Uekman holds a special place in the sisters' community. She entered at Providence Heights near Pittsburgh, on Jan. 6, 1924, but traveled to the Gateway of the West for the founding of the CDP's St. Louis Province in the 1930s.

Today, she is the last living sister who was present at the founding ceremony.

Sister Uekman resides at Mount Providence, 8351 Florissant Road, St. Louis, Mo. 63121.

Day cares 'different' businesses

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

In addition to stringent state licensing procedures, operators of day cares are coming up against even tougher local zoning ordinances when they seek permits.

That's why two groups — one representing day-care providers and the other representing business — have banded together — will jointly produce a zoning directory for family child care.

The two groups are the Children's Home and Aid Society of Illinois and the Small Business Development Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The directory will contain information on who to call; what ordinances apply and what to do for a day-care provider seeking a permit.

"It will get them through the initial red tape," said Jan Moenster, resource developer for CHASIS.

Moenster said that surveys are being sent to 35 municipalities as well as the Madison and St. Clair County boards to get the information for the directory.

The surveys will also ask how officials feel about child-care services in their communities and how they gauge public reaction to day-care homes.

Rick Russell, a business specialist with the Small Business Development Center, said that local zoning is a challenge for almost any small business but seems to hit day cares particularly hard because they are a "different" kind of business.

Moenster said that's a distinction that municipal leaders need to recognize. "Home day cares" get lumped in with every other kind of business," said Moenster.

"It's not your typical business. It's more like a community service like your libraries or churches. It's something every community needs."

Russell said he is hopeful that the development of the directory will help raise the level of awareness of the need for in-home care as well as starting a discussion about the zoning issues surrounding them.

According to county ordinance, anyone who regularly cares for a child in a home violates the county ordinance for use of a residence if they do not have a special-use permit.

"This campaign will raise needed funding. It will help keep us going," said Lt. Tim Miller of the Salvation Army.

Miller said the Salvation Army is the largest provider of food services in this area and served more than 35,000 people in need of food last year, about four times the number served by the second-largest food provider. He said the agency is currently on a pace to match that number this year.

"Please remember, what you are giving might very well be needed to help someone in your own family — perhaps even yourself," Miller said.

In addition to food services, the Salvation Army conducts programs attended by an average of 50 to 60 children a week, including a day camp program going on right now and attended by 25 to 40 children a day.

Volunteers are still needed to sit with collection containers in front of various stores throughout the area. Anyone willing to volunteer may call 461-7307 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or call 876-2751 any time.

•Board

Dickerson, 33, unsuccessfully ran for a school board seat in 1991. Sources said that Board Members Walt Whitaker, Pete Novacich and Jim Noeth had supported Dickerson since the replacement search began. Those three members — who did not attend the June 23 special session — voted for Dickerson last week.

It wasn't until Thursday's special meeting, when Dickerson garnered the support of Member Jeff Parker, that the board could agree on a candidate.

Board Member Eldin Rea, who cast the lone vote against naming Dickerson to the board, said after the meeting that he had another candidate in mind that he thought was better qualified.

Parker said that he also had other candidates in mind, but said he voted for Dickerson "in a spirit of cooperation."

"It's time we start working together. I had a lot of people in mind, but I hope Rick comes in and works with us for the benefit of the district," Parker said.

Board Member Carolyn Nemeth was on vacation and did not attend the meeting.

Dickerson has two children: Michele, 18, and Jason, 12. He is a Peterbilt tractor trailer truck salesman.

Other candidates who were considered for the post included former board members Roy Koberna, Dave Partney and Dewey Melton; former unsuccessful board candidates Craig Astor and Fran Page; former district employees Ron Dillard (also a former board member); Rich Brinkhoff, Helen Schmauser and Mike Sikora; Liz Briggs, a retired teacher and wife of former Regional Superintendent Gene Briggs; Jeff Worthen, a former alderman and former Park Board president; and businessman Ray Morgan.

•Budget

The budget projects general fund revenue of $13,135,305 and expenditure of $13,416,337.

Revenue includes about $10.2 million in various taxes — including $2,985,117 in property taxes and $2.35 million in state sales taxes.

The property tax figure represents no increase in the tax rate for the city's general fund. City leaders have attempted to hold that rate steady since 1988.

The expenditures could total as much as $388,000 more when pay increases for white-collar workers, police officers and street workers are factored in, MacTaggart said.

Unions representing those employees are currently negotiating with the city.

The budget expenditures, broken down by department, are projected as follows:

Police	$3,498,277
Fire	$3,430,718
Financial administration	$2,871,156
Sanitation	$1,968,354
Street	$1,232,687

City Clerk	$189,744
Treasurer	$145,084

GED grads urged: Continue education

At the recent GED graduation ceremony, Belleville Area College President Joseph J. Cipri and Kay Bennett, chairperson of the Board of Trustees, both challenged GED graduates to continue their education.

The ceremony, held June 2 at the Belleville Campus, honored 487 individuals who have completed BAC's General Education Development program and passed the GED test.

"Don't stop now," Dr. Cipri said. "You have come so far and you can go so much further."

There are other ways BAC encourages GED graduates to attend college, also. St. Clair County Sheriff Mearl Justus, who is a GED graduate himself, established a BAC scholarship for GED graduates.

Graduates of this year's program ranged in age from 17 to 79. Each had left high school for various reasons, including personal problems and financial hardship.

Howard Hoepfinger, 65, of Belleville, originally from Germany, dropped out of school at the age of 13 because of financial problems, and because he did not speak English very well.

He worked on a farm, then later joined the navy. He enrolled in GED classes after 10 separate operations for heart and back problems, and a stroke.

"The good Lord above has chosen to keep me here, so he must want me to do something with my life," Hoepfinger said.

Right now, he is considering going into real estate.

Doretta Ann Landers, 53, of Granite City dropped out of school at age 13 to get married and start a family. Since then, she has raised five daughters and a son.

Landers was prompted to take GED classes by two of her daughters and her 21-year-old granddaughter, all of whom had taken GED classes.

But she really signed up because she wanted to enroll in a Licensed Practical Nurse program in St. Louis.

"Mom always said, 'You can do or be whatever you want to be, but nothing will be handed to you. You will have to work hard to appreciate anything you accomplish,'" Landers said.

Scouts enjoy 2 days at Camp Warren Lewis

Kathy Dohnal

Kathy Dohnal covers the Madison-Venice scene for the Press-Record/Journal. Articles can be sent to 2108 Lynch or she can be contacted at 752-2077.

The following is a recipe submitted by Sylvia Olich for the weekly recipe swap:

Nut Roll
1 cup cottage cheese (small curd)
1 cup butter (two sticks)
2 cups flour

Beat cottage cheese and butter until it looks like whipped cream. Work flour into whipped cream mixture. Separate dough into two parts; wrap in wax paper and refrigerate overnight.

Filling:
1 lb. walnuts or pecans (two cups)
1 cup sugar
Carnation milk (enough to make filling like a paste to spread)

1 egg yolk
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup water
Roll dough and spread filling on top, then roll dough into a jelly roll. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes. Melt butter. Spread on top of roll. Bake about one hour. Beat egg yolk with water and glaze rolls; bake until brown.

On June 13 and 14, the Cub Scouts of Pack 21, Den 9, in Madison, went to day camp held at Camp Warren Lewis. Camp opened with the raising of the flag. The boys participated in BB shooting, archery, various crafts, swimming, hiking and games. Safety rules were discussed during BB shooting, archery and swimming. During the hike, various plants and other nature items were pointed out and discussed. The boys painted Indian signs and pictures on large boards. These boards will be hung inside large tape shelters being built at the camp. Entertainment during lunch breaks was provided by story tellers. The camp closed with the lowering of the flag, firing of the cannon and a prayer led by Chief Akela.

Those participating in the camp were Steve, Sue and Matt Skoklo; Andy Gehring and his parents, Margaret and Victor; Matt Widel; Nathan Griffith and Sean Grey.

The den would like to thank the camp staff for all their work and the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 7451 for financing the trip.

Christa Parkinson was guest of honor at a bridal shower held June 26 at Ravanelli's Restaurant and hosted by the Belle-more Glik's gang.

After dinner, a decorated cake was served. Flowers and gifts were presented to the honoree. Those attending were Jane Parkinson, Daphne Cardwell, Kim Charbonnier, Sandy Detto, Violet Holder, Sandy Conklin, Donna Carrie, Laurie Guenther, Gerry Mendez, Rose Krystopa, Mary Ann Pare, Kathy Dohnal, Linda Dohnal and Deena Scarborough.

Christa will become the bride of Darrin Harnetiaus at Calvary Baptist Church on July 9.

Lehoczky was born June 10, 1893, in a quiet village on the central part of Hungary on the Danube River.

She married John in 1911 and left her homeland for America on the ship named Carpathia.

On April 15, 1911, when the Titanic ran upon a giant iceberg, Carpathia was the first ship here to pick up survivors from the damaged Titanic.

Lehoczky remembers that historical event very clearly.

Lehoczky lived in Granite City for more than 82 years.

Colonial Care is honored that she celebrated her 101st birthday with them.

In its way, the U.S. Olympic Festival came to Fairview Heights last Wednesday in the form of the East men's baseball squad gaining a 14-2 victory over a team of mostly American Legion players called "The Metro-East All-Stars."

The game at Longacre Park attracted nearly 1,200 spectators, and Fairview Heights mayor George Lamson expressed delight with what he termed the largest crowd ever to watch a baseball game at the Longacre facility.

"It was a great evening," Lamson said.

ONE CAN ONLY wonder how Lamson would have reacted had the St. Louis Cardinals not had a hole in their 1994 schedule permitting the four Olympic Festival teams to use Busch Stadium while the Redbirds were on the road.

"We came very close to hosting all the Festival games," said Fairview Heights alderman Steve Hemmer, who referred to Longacre and Washington University as the two top contenders had Busch Stadium not been available.

While the 14-run outburst allowed some of the members of the East squad composed of eight recent high school graduates and eight seniors-to-be to display some overconfidence, no one could challenge the class of the Fairview baseball diamond.

BASEBALL and Fairview Heights are becoming synonymous. The game involving the Olympic Festival team is just one of several events above the usual high school and American Legion schedule played in the city.

In 1993, Fairview Heights will become the first United States city to host a division of the Pan Am Games. That will be for boys ages 11 and 12 in what is called the Intelfest Division. The action is set for Aug. 2-14 and will involve 10 to 14 games with several countries represented.

Fairview Heights Parks Director Terry Wilson spent part of a week in May in Vera Cruz, Mexico, in planning for Fairview's part in the Games. And, thanks to Kevin Whitworth of St. Louis who is involved with both the Olympic Festival and Pan Am Games, Fairview Heights has yet another plan in the works.

In 1995 and thereafter, there is a chance Fairview will host a 16-team tourney for Senior Legion-age players, with eight countries involved.

"It's kind of early to talk much about that," Lamson said. The fact is, though, it is never too early to expect Lamson and Fairview Heights to be planning ahead a fact that nearly led to the Olympic Festival baseball games being held in Illinois.

EXTRA INNINGS: Two players in the exhibition game at Fairview had fans buzzing. William Deck, first baseman for the East, and Dwayne "Bubba" Johnston, designated hitter for the Metro East stars.

Deck, a 6-foot, 175-pound left-handed hitting and throwing first baseman from Dumfries, Va., will be a senior this year at Potomac High.

He did nothing but enhance his chances of being drafted next spring with a hitting exhibition that included a single, three-run double and a two-run home run. "He's like a young Pete Rose," said one fan of Deck, who hustled at all times, slung into the first base dugout fence trying to catch a pop-up and showed excellent footwork.

Johnston continues to support his decision to play baseball rather than football on the collegiate level. The 6-foot-2, 260-pound Belleville West graduate had three singles and a walk and drove in a run in four at-bats.

Asked where he would play Johnston at Belleville Area College, Stars coach Neil Flala referred to "a little bit at first and catcher, but we'll find a place in the lineup for him." Hitters command that type of respect.

Seim, Southern measuring up
title chancesBy Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

The teams have changed, but the end result has usually been the same in recent years for the Southern Region open men's soccer team at the Prairie State Games.

Southern has won five gold medals, including the past four. Coach Norm Seim will be looking to make it five straight when the finals kick off Friday in Peoria.

But Seim, in his first year with the open men's team after leading the scholastic men's team to three straight titles, said Southern's dominance might be challenged a bit more this year.

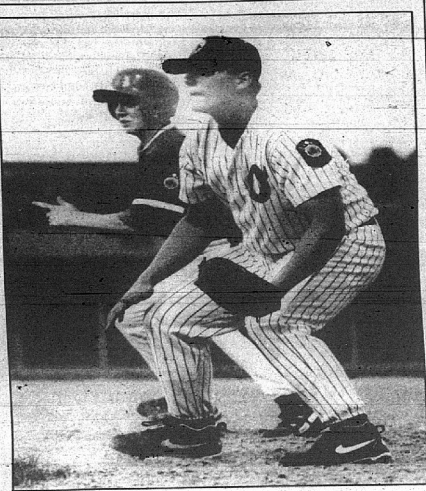

"The Southern Region has always been real strong, especially with the men," Seim said. "Everybody's gunning for us. I think it's going to be difficult this year."

"I HEAR THE Pioneer Region is really stacked. It'll be interesting to see how it goes."

The Southern Region, once again, is made up of some of the best East area's top talent. Most of the players have college experience, and most of them are from Granite City and Collinsville.

"That's the way it usually is," Seim said.

Sharing success
Olympic Festival medalist visits with youth wrestlersBy Rob Raphael Correspondent

A very special Olympic athlete has left the area with a pair of bronze medals, and some lucky junior high wrestlers have been left with the experience of a lifetime.

The U.S. Olympic Festival, held this year in the St. Louis area, brings athletes from around the country to the entire region. One of them, Olympic wrestler Mike Kimmerly, spent the week staying right here in Granite City.

Kimmerly was the guest of local wrestling coach Allen Kirgan, who was happy to welcome the native of Cincinnati, Ohio, to his home for a week's stay while Kimmerly competed in the wrestling competition at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville.

KIRGAN TOOK advantage of the opportunity by bringing many of his young wrestlers from Coolidge Junior High over for some good times and expert instruction.

"How often do you get a chance like this to learn from an Olympic-class athlete in the comfort of your own living room," Kirgan said. "Actually, I had four wrestlers staying here one time, but Mike is the only one still competing."

Besides Kimmerly, Kirgan had Muhammad Maynard, a Colorado Springs, Colo., resident who is ranked No. 1 in the country in the 105.5-pound freestyle division; Dustin Waugh, ranked No. 6 nationally in the 114-pound freestyle class; and Deon Wright, a 198-pound wrestler unranked, but still a Festival qualifier.

Kimmerly, 23, earned two medals at the Festival. He picked up the bronze in his weight division (105.5) in both the Greco-Roman and freestyle divisions, which he said was no easy task.

"There are not too many wrestlers out there who wrestle in both divisions," said Kimmerly, who competed in his first Olympic Festival. "It is difficult to do both, because they are so different in style."

The basic difference between freestyle and Greco-Roman is that Greco wrestlers cannot use their legs or feet to score. "GRECO CAN BE more exciting," Kirgan said, "because there is a faster pace and more scoring. More points can actually be scored when the legs can't be used."

Kimmerly and the other wrestlers' expertise was used to show wrestling techniques to the junior high students. Also, the students got a chance to hang out with the wrestlers, as well as attend the Festival to watch their new friends.

Carbondale duo to lead
Southern Region cagers

Tucker, Hudson head PSG team; Mosby selected for backcourt

By R.J. Gerber
Staff writer

For the first time in five years as the Southern Region Scholastic Men's basketball coach, Dennis Rueter has a quality big man to work with.

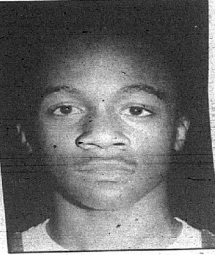

Rueter, the head coach at Gibault High School, will lead the Scholastic Men's squad into the Prairie State Games, scheduled to begin Friday in Peoria.

And Rueter believes the key to Southern's success lies with the play of Tashad Tucker, a graduate of Carbondale High School.

Tucker, a versatile 6-7 post player, joins high school teammate Troy Hudson (6-1, University of Missouri-bound point guard) and 10 other talented cagers on the squad. Tucker, a Division 1 prospect, will attend Lincoln Junior College this fall after failing to meet NCAA academic guidelines.

RUETER, WHO HAS led Region 8 to a pair of fourth-place finishes in his first four years coaching in the Games, said Tucker gives his squad something special.

"Tucker is the key. He's a solid player and he gives us an athletic big man that we've never had," Rueter said. "He gives us that chance for a gold medal but that depends on the draw. Our chances look better than usual, but you never know until you get up there."

Region 8 again has a solid group of backcourt players including Hudson, who led Carbondale High to a runner-up finish at the Class AA state tournament in March.

Joining Hudson at the guard slots are Laren Mosby, a gradu-

A solid defensive corps seems to be the strength of this year's Prairie State Games Southern Region Scholastic Men's soccer team.

Region 8, coached by Edwardsville High School's Mark Schwarzkopf and Mark Heiderscheid, is made up of 18 players from Alton, Carbondale, Collinsville, Collinsville, Edwardsville and Alton Marquette high schools.

Quality defensemen are what the Southern Region can rely on when the Games kick off Friday in Peoria. Heiderscheid, who assisted Schwarzkopf in selecting the open men's team for last year's Games, said a pair of Edwardsville high youngsters should bolster the backfield.

Justin McFarland and Andy Peck — both juniors-to-be at EHS — are quality players.

"THE BACK FIVE could end up being pretty strong through the central defense," Heiderscheid said. "McFarland is a sweeper who will be heard from the next two years and Peck is an exceptional athlete."

Doug Hartmann, a product of Collinsville High bound for SIUE, should also help defensively.

That line of defense will need to play effectively to support a pair of relatively inexperienced goalkeepers. Brian Stark (See SOCCER, Page 48)

Mike Kimmerly, an Olympic Festival wrestler who won two bronze medals at SIUE this week, puts a move on George Kirgan of Granite City. Kimmerly and several other Olympic Festival athletes stuck around to instruct wrestlers from Coolidge Junior High.

Change in PSG format keeps
Southern track coach guessingBy R.J. Gerber
Staff writer

Jack Bair's fourth year as the Prairie State Games Southern Region track coach has been somewhat trying.

Track is one of several sports that no longer have qualifying events or tryouts to determine which athletes will take part in the Games, scheduled to begin July 15 in Peoria.

"They've changed the format so much I don't know who we'll have there. It's an all-comers meet," said Bair, formerly the girls track coach at East St. Louis Senior High School.

"They really don't help the kids out at all anymore."

NOT ONLY WAS Bair forced to pay for some of the athletes' lodging last year, but he doesn't know how many will even turn out this summer.

And the venue has been changed as well. After being held in Champaign for several years, the Games have been moved to Peoria.

"It will be completely new for me at Peoria," Bair said. "And we enjoyed having the tryouts (in the past) and seeing who was going to make it."

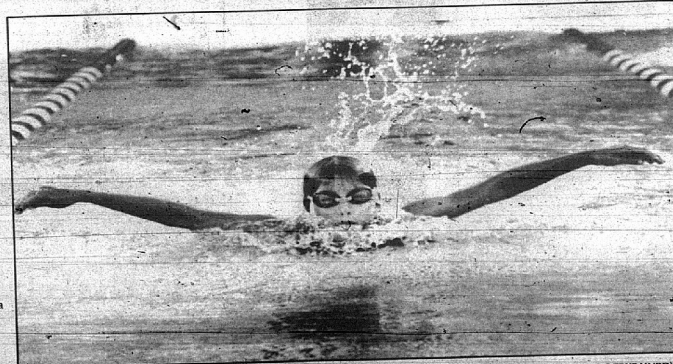

This year's track events, which are divided into men's and women's scholastic and open divisions, will be held at Peoria Stadium.

The field events begin at 3 p.m. Friday and preliminaries in sprint and hurdle events are scheduled for 4:30. Competition runs into Saturday evening.

BUT AS FAR as the Southern Region goes, Bair isn't sure who will be there. Some athletes who competed in last year's Games have orally committed to participate this summer.

Several scholastic female competitors could return, including Latasha Fox (Tongue Jumper, hurdler) from Alton and Edwardsville sprinter Jean Golejowski.

Bair is also looking for sprinters Jeanette Marsh and (See TRACK, Page 48)

Kickers

Missouri-St. Louis; Tim Henson, a goalkeeper now with Lewis and Clark Community College; and Jerry Lakin, Jason Mathenia, Nicholas Pavia, Kurt Atkinson and Jeff Rosenberg.

Steve Van Dyke, now at Eastern Illinois University, leads a Collinsville contingent that includes goalkeeper Fonzes Mark, Mike Vering, James Ossola and Scott Baldus.

Seim said the team is heavy on midfielders and versatile players who can switch fields without losing much ability.

"We haven't played a game yet, so we're going to have to do some experimenting," Seim said. "We'll probably have some players at some positions they're not used to."

The teams I like to put together are ball control teams. That's why I like to go with midfielders. They can usually adapt well to a change in position.

The midfielders include Seim's two sons, Ryan and Chris. Ryan Seim, who will be a sophomore at Northeast Missouri State next year, is coming off a knee injury and is questionable for the Prairie State Games. Chris Seim, also at Northeast Missouri State, will be used as an attacker as well as in the midfield.

The other midfielders are Vering, now playing at Western Illinois; Ossola, who played at Duke University; Jay Ross of Edwardsville, now at Western Illinois; Pat Kane of Alton, now at Bradley University; Justin to Ohio State; and Baldus, Pavia and Birdsong.

Seim said Birdsong, Ross and Chris Seim figure to see plenty of time in the attacking end.

"They're big guns," Seim said. "We should be pretty strong up front. Jay and Skip will be strong offensively. They have size and speed."

The team's forwards include Atkinson and Joseph Thourne of SIUE. The top defenders are Mathenia, Lakin and Rosenberg.

Seim said the team lacks the stars it has had in the past and has a younger look this year.

"We've always had big stars like Joe Reiniger and John Van Buskirk," Seim said. "This year, we don't really have any big-time names. We're a little young, but it's a solid group."

Seim has been a soccer coach for the Southern Region since the games began in 1984. He coached the scholastic women's team for several years before taking on the scholastic men's team the past three years.

"I enjoy it," he said. "It's been nice for this area and I think it needs to be supported."
